

✨ The COS™ Daily | 📅 April 20, 2025

✨ Inspiring Leadership Is Driven by a Higher Purpose

🔍 Leadership is everywhere.

We see it in every walk of life—across professions, titles, and stages of living.

In many ways, we're all leaders—of our choices, our values, our path.

👥 Some lead by role: mothers, fathers, mentors.

🎤 Others by influence: politicians, public figures, team leads.

🌀 There are self-proclaimed leaders, born leaders, reluctant leaders, and loud leaders.

🕒 But I've learned something over the years—through personal growth and professional experience:

💡 It takes someone truly special to be an inspiring leader.

🌱 An inspiring leader doesn't just manage.

They elevate.

They touch other people's strengths.

They draw out the best in others.

✨ The leaders I've aligned with most in my life—people like Mike Bloomberg and Sherry Lansing—had something deeper driving them.

Just like Gandhi... and even great poets.

Their leadership wasn't rooted in ego or titles.

It was driven by something higher.

🕊️ A sense of service.

🌀 A desire to transform lives.

🌍 A calling to build something better—whether that's an organization, a family, or society at large.

🔥 That's what makes leadership truly inspiring.

💬 Who has inspired you in your life or career?

What do you believe separates someone who leads... from someone who uplifts?

🖋️ A Renaissance Reflection on purpose, presence, and the power to elevate.

#Leadership #InspiringLeadership #EmotionalIntelligence #RenaissanceMind
#MikeBloomberg #SherryLansing #Marriott #RitzCarlton #LinkedInLeaders
#LegacyLeadership #cosdelli